A brief history of VETRA

Vétra is a family-business ; Founded by our great-grandfather, Vétra is attached to its roots and values of quality, preservation of know-how, close relationship with its fellow customers.

Vétra keeps breaking new ground with the use of organic cotton for its flagship jackets.

VETRA has ever been a manufacturer's brand since its creation in Paris. The workshop has been basically linked to the brand.

Since 2010, VETRA through a new generation, continues to explore its past to reinvent new products while keeping in mind that from the origin function makes workwear.

Thanks to its global renown for its savoir-faire of workwear manufacturing, VETRA collaborated with CLOSED, founded by François Girbaud, on a "bleu de travail", made by VETRA and dyed by CLOSED. Vétra also collaborated with LE COQ SPORTIF on a "moleskin pair of shoes", the shoes being manufactured near LE LUDE by LCS and the fabrics dyed by Vétra.

100% Made in France since 1927

Vetra Manufactures all its products in France in its own factory.
Almost 100 Years Of French Savoir-Faire.

Authentic

DUNGAREE WASHED TWILL

The authentic french workwear fabric.

The Dungaree Washed twill supplanted the moleskin at the beginning of the century to become in turn iconic of French workwear, while the Anglo-Saxons preferred drills or twills. The dungaree twill, which is specific to French workwear, has a twisted warp thread (two threads twisted together) to ensure good resistance.

Authentic French Moleskine

The authentic French workwear moleskine in 100% cotton.

The French Moleskin fabric is a very resistant sateen fabric due to very high density of yarns in the weft. Iconic of the French workwear wardrobe, it has been supplied by Vétra since 1927. Vétra was also the first brand to offer a wide range of colours (like for the dungaree twill in pure cotton), while the first historical colours were blue and black, because they were easy to dye. Vétra offers both French moleskin (cotton sateen) and English moleskin (brushed suede).
